For 2016 to 2018, the total cost of care for infants discharged with a NAS diagnosis was nearly $95 million. Of the 84% of infants discharged with NAS who fell under governmental insurance, 99.9% used Medicaid as the primary pay source. It is important to note that the charges presented here are the initial charges associated with the visit and do not necessarily represent the cost to the hospital for providing the care, nor do they represent the amount actually collected by the hospital for providing the care.

* Charts displaying NAS data for length of stay, charges, and insurance payer are based upon total discharges during the first 28 days of life; so potentially multiple records for the same child are included in these statistics. Note that not all the NAS cases have associated charges.
